

NOT QUITE WONDERLAND

Not Quite Wonderland

I lay awake in my bed
Dreaming about a world so different from mine
But my names not Alice
And this is far from wonderland
So I'll continue to cry
And to scream
To hope that this fantasy of mine Is just as real as the world we're living in
And so I continue to pretend I'm falling into a rabbit hole of dreams Into a life much better than I could fathom Something so much easier

AMBER

(any)

I've always loved Alice In Wonderland, but refused to believe that Alice was just "crazy". Maybe she was falling into a different rabbit hole but didn't want to believe it, maybe it's a rabbit hole more like mine.

This artwork shows me falling in a rabbit hole type area surrounded by struggles. The poem shows my thoughts about how life isn't always a dream, and it isn't always wonderland.

